COUNCIL CONSIDERS PROTESTS RE CLOSING OF BUFFALO PARK

Following is a copy of the proposed resolutions of the council of the Town of Wainwright at its regular meeting in the council chamber at 8 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 21, 1939.

Members of council present at this meeting were Mayor Middlemass and Councillors Robinson, Cork, Welch, Billing and Lissimore.

The recorded proceedings of council at its regular meeting of November 7, 1939, were read and, on motion by Councillor Cork, were adopted and confirmed as written.

A communication from the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, relative to the abandonment of the buffalo park, was placed before council and, on motion by Councillor Welch, it was unanimously resolved that the letter from the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce be replied to by the town secretary, sending them a copy of the letter sent to Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, M.P., and also stating that the citizens of Wainwright strongly object to the permanent closing of the park but do not wish to retard any plans of the Defence Minister, providing the park will again be used as a game preserve when it is no longer needed for military purposes.

A communication, addressed to Mayor Middlemass, bearing also on the removal of the animals from the Buffalo Park, from the Alberta Motor Association, was placed before council and, on motion by Coun. Cork, the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to reply thereto, stating that the Town Council have expressed their regrets to the Dominion Government as to the destroying of the buffalo (Continued on Page Four)

Benefit Social Huge Success

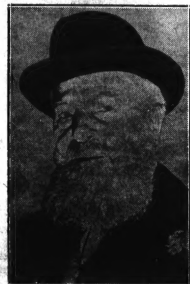

Both socially and financially the benefit card party and dance staged in the Separate School auditorium on Wednesday evening last was a huge success.

The entertainment, which was sponsored by the Agricultural Improvement Association and the Catholic Ladies' Aid, was put on to help an old timer of the district who, due to unfortunate circumstances, has found it rather difficult to carry on during the past year, and the proceeds were turned over to this worthy cause.

The first part of the evening was spent in visiting with Mrs. P. May and Miss M. Baker winning the ladies' prizes and Mr. Garth Mills and Mr. V. Devignon being high scorers for the gentlemen. The special prize of the evening was won by Tom O'Reilly.

A large crowd filled the dance hall for several hours of dancing at the close of the cards, with music supplied by the local orchestra.

Enter a Grandee

Whitebearded and handsome, Jose Lazara, said to be the wealthiest man in Spain, is shown as he arrived in New York on the S.S. Rex. This is his first visit to the United States. Senor Lazara is said to have been the "angel" behind the revolt that made General Francisco Franco master of Spain.

St. Andrew's Pres. Church Notes

In connection with the Gilt Edge congregation of the Presbyterian church, a Young People's Society was organized on Wednesday, November 22nd.

Officers consisted of Louis Spady, president; Helen Potter, vice president; Doris Peacock, secretary, and Gladys Cubitt as treasurer.

The programme committee is Bill Spady, Bob McLennan and Bill McLennan.

The Society started with 12 members and will meet every two weeks in the Orange Hall until otherwise arranged.

Worthy Gr. Matron Visits Local Chapter

On Friday evening last, Connaught Chapter No. 8, G.E.S., was honored when Mrs. Harriet Washburn, Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Alberta, paid her official visit.

Mrs. Maud Lepper, Worthy Matron of the Chapter, extended a cordial welcome to Mrs. N. S. Kenny, Mrs. M. L. Cullen and Mrs. F. E. Nichol, past grand officers, and also a large number of visitors from Vermilion, Irma, Vegreville and Edmonton.

During the evening, the lovely degree was exemplified in a gratifying manner and Mrs. Washburn spoke inspiringly on the work of the Order.

At the close of the ceremonies, a sumptuous lunch was served by the committee in charge of social arrangements.

Mrs. L. Mitchell Shower Hostess

(Held over from last week)

The home of Mrs. L. Mitchell was the scene of a merry gathering on Tuesday evening, when a number of friends gathered to honor Miss A. Carriell on the occasion of her coming marriage.

Games of various sorts were thoroughly enjoyed and contests were won by Miss Beattie Bowerman and Miss Elsie Wright.

Following dainty refreshments, served by the hostess, a crib full of lovely and useful gifts was placed before the honored guest, she fittingly voicing her thanks, both for the presents and the good wishes which were extended to her.

Mr. N. E. Beaupre, of Legal, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carroll this week.

A concert party from Wainwright supplemented the showing at Irma of Dr. C. Greenberg's moving pictures of the San Francisco World Fair and the Royal Visit, on Wednesday evening of last week.

Those from town taking part in the programme included Miss M. Darrah, Mrs. R. Lewis, Rev. R. M. Boas and Messrs. Chas. Horn and Alex. Adams. Mr. Fred Ford, of Battle Heights, also assisted in the concert.

Week End Show Mirth Provoking

As bubbling as vintage champagne, "Safe Society" is deluxe entertainment. With more than ordinary success, it subjects that Gotham circle of silk stockings from which it derives its name to a large dose of plain and fancy spoofing. The story and dialogue attain moments of brittle brightness of which a highly satisfactory cast takes full advantage, with the Thespian nod in direction of Madeleine Carroll, who shows a heretofore unregistered flair for subtlety. Fred MacMurray and Shirley Ross are valuable assistants in this week end picture at the Elite.

The story, an original screen play by Virginia Van Upp, is about a wealthy young woman, seven years out and still unwed, who marries a ship news reporter by way of winning a wager with a society columnist who says she isn't news any more.

The incidents involved in the working out of the story are lively, funny and well staged. Some of the characters will seem to many who consider themselves informed to represent certain contemporary personalities well known along 52nd Street in New York City. It isn't necessary to be in the know to find them amusing, understandable persons doing unusual and usual things logically.

"Peace" Powers at Work

Territories once occupied or threatened by Russia and Germany while they denounce British France and the United States as war mongers are shown here. Finland (A) will be a second Poland unless she grants land to the Soviet, which also threatens Sweden (B) and Norway (C). Russia already occupies Estonia (D), Latvia (E) and Lithuania (F) and threatens to take Bessarabia from Roumania (G) and Black Sea territory from Turkey (H). Germany covets the Schleswig-Holstein area of Denmark (I) and threatens Norway (C) for her part in the City of Flint case. The Nazis also have mighty armies on the borders of The Netherlands (2), Belgium (3) and Switzerland (4). Nazi agitators have Hungary (5) in a turmoil with their efforts to have Hungary attack Roumania.

REGISTRATION OF LOCAL WOMEN ENDED SATURDAY

The voluntary registration of Canadian women for emergency work if needed, which was carried on last week end, was closed on Saturday evening.

We learn that nearly sixty local women filled out the questionnaires, giving their qualifications and expressing willingness to serve in any suitable capacity. The forms have now been returned to Vermilion, where we believe the total registration for the Battle River constituency is being tabulated for the Ottawa compilation.

Fall Precipitation Less Than Normal

The precipitation that has occurred over the three prairie provinces during the fall months of August, September and October has averaged only 62% of the normal or longtime average. In Alberta the percentage has been 78, in Saskatchewan 48, and in Manitoba 80.

Investigation has shown that the precipitation which falls during the months of August, September and October, or immediately following the harvest and until the ground freezes, forms the foundation for the forthcoming crop, inasmuch as this precipitation nearly all penetrates into the soil and is held there fast, available to be drawn upon for the following crop. Investigation has also shown that a normal wheat crop of 16½ bushels to the acre usually requires the full average amount of this fall reserve moisture.

A study of past records reveals the following: In Alberta, since the year 1898 (the earliest date that yield figures are available) there have been 17 years where the fall rains have been less than normal; 6 of these years produced an average or better than average crop, but 11 years produced less than an average crop.

It appears from this, then, that whenever less than normal precipitation occurs in the fall, that the odds are definitely against an average crop being produced in the following year.

This year, however, the fall precipitation, it will be observed, is not only less than normal, but considerably less than normal, particularly in Saskatchewan. The records reveal that in Alberta there have been only four years since 1898 when fall moisture was as low as it is this year, and of these four years in only one year was an average crop produced, and in 3 years the crops were considerably less than average.

It will be observed, therefore, that the probabilities are against an average crop being produced in Alberta and Manitoba next year unless considerably better than average rainfall occurs during the growing season, and as this report shows, these better than normal rains in the growing season, after a dry fall, have occurred in the past in about one year in three. In Saskatchewan, however, the odds are quite high against a normal crop being produced next year.

This is a serious matter in itself, we venture to say, but when coupled with the news of the drought in the American winter wheat area, and of the less than average moisture reserves available for next year's spring wheat crop in the United States, it would seem as though the drought, which will have an important effect on forthcoming crops, has been continuous.

CARD OF THANKS

The Red Cross Society wishes to extend thanks to the Separate School Board and the artists who very kindly contributed their services on the night of the Red Cross rally.

Heading the list of donations to the local Red Cross is a very splendid scrap of $100 by Mr. H. C. Link, of the Wainwright Hotel.

GERMAN TACTICS BRING REPRISALS

The war at sea and the growing tension between Russia and Finland held the spotlight this week as action continued her policy of unrestricted mine-laying, which resulted in the sinking of both neutral and British vessels.

In a broadcast address on Sunday last, Prime Minister Chamberlain stated that there was no possibility of a preface to more drastic measures "starve out" the British Isles, would prove successful. Britain now held the secret of the new mine and would overcome it as she had already overcome the U-boat menace.

Meanwhile, as a retaliatory measure, Allied naval forces have commenced sailing all exports from Germany, whether carried in German or neutral ships, as well as continuing their campaign against import of the materials of war.

First of the neutral countries to be preface to more drastic measures was Sweden, with a claim that German mines have been sown in Swedish territorial waters.

The Russian-Finn dispute reached a new climax on Sunday with a border incident in which 18 Russian soldiers were killed by artillery fire. The Soviet reports state that shell came from a Finnish gun, but the Finns report that the gun was located at least a mile inside Russian territory and accuse the Russians of trying to promote a serious border incident against Finland.

The French government, which has been governing by decree since prior to the outbreak of war, faced the representatives of the people again this week and was expected to receive overwhelming endorsement from the Chamber of Deputies. The Minister of Finance announced a budget which called for expenditures of $7,678,000 during the next fiscal year.

Red + Notes

On Monday of last week, thousands upon thousands of recruits to the Canadian Red Cross army of volunteer workers marched out in full strength to rally their fellow Canadians to the support of the national war drive.

With the battle cry, "They are spreading their efforts like a dragon over the entire Dominion and are appealing for contributions, large and small, to make up the three million dollars which Red Cross officers state must be obtained if the organization is to embark upon a duplication and enlargement of the work it did during the last war.

In the few days that have passed since the campaign was launched, it has been possible for canvassers only to scratch the surface of the territory that is to be covered thoroughly to realize the objective. But gratification has been expressed at Red Cross headquarters already that people have been in the response without waiting for volunteers to call. It is hoped that others will follow their example.

Canvassers report enthusiastic reception from those already approached. Particularly whole-hearted has been the response from veterans of the last war who benefitted from Red Cross work. Some of these men are not well off financially and have given all they could afford, it is reported.

Included among the thousands of other people who have gone deep into their pockets to support the war drive are parents and wives of men who lay wounded in hospitals in the last war and whose progress was reported faithfully to anxious relatives in this Dominion by Canadian Red Cross volunteer workers in England.

Men who were prisoners of war are also generous in their response. It is said, for some of them as claim that they would have starved in prison had it not been for Red Cross supplies.

The campaign was launched on Monday following messages of inspiration broadcast the day before by Lord Tweedsmuir and Prime Minister Mackenzie King. A cable message was delivered, too, from the Duke of Gloucester, who stated that headquarters of the British Red Cross, of which he is president, had been established behind the Maginot Line in France.

Red Cross officials state the belief that there will be an even greater demand for service during the present conflict than there was in the last war. They point out that hospitals must be provided and supplies must be sent to the front. They emphasize the urgent necessity of surgical supplies and dressings for military hospitals. Refugees are being and must continue to be assisted, it is said.

Attention is drawn to the fact that despite the great burden of war work, the Canadian Red Cross cannot afford to neglect its peace-time work. Otherwise, thousands of people right here in Canada—many of them in isolated districts where other medical assistance cannot be obtained—would suffer.

"From the response so far to our appeal," states Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, former Canadian High Commissioner to London, who is chairman of the national campaign committee, "I believe that the people of Canada fully realize this fact and are ready to do all in their power to assist us in carrying on with our peace-time and war work."

Moved by Coun. Collette—That this council sell to J. H. Fletcher the N.E. 30-46-7 for a sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), terms and conditions as follows: 5% cash down, no interest on remaining principal, balance to be one-third share of crops grown, commencing year 1941 (on account of no land being broken) for a period of 10 years, taxes to be paid each and every year as from January 1st, 1940, purchaser to break not less than 15 acres each year until 60 acres are broken, and the Secretary prepare a by-law and all other necessary papers in this regard.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Collette—That application for tax consolidations on the S.E. 21-44-9, S.W. 3-46-9, S.E. 2-46-9, S.E. 2-46-7, S.E. 2-46-8, S.E. 2-46-5 be approved.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Kilby—That application for tax consolidation on All 9-45-7 be approved.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Steels—That application for Tax Consolidation on the S/4, 3-45-8 be approved.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Smallwood—That application for Tax Consolidations on the S.E. 21-44-9, S.W. 3-46-9, S.E. 21-45-9, N.E. 35-45-9, N.W. 24-45-7, N.W. 26-44-9 be approved.—Carried.

As per the advertisement in the September 30th issue of the Alberta Gazette, the following parcels of land not redeemed were offered for sale: S.W. 12-46-7, S.E. 4-44-9, N.E. 18-46-8, 32-46-7, all west 4th. No bids being received, sale was declared closed on motion by Coun. Blakey, same being carried.

Moved by Coun. Blakey—That the crop lease N.E. 24-44-8, Alex. Szoke, 1939, on wheat amounting to $70.72 be accepted, and that Mr. Szoke pay the sum of $5.00, being the amount agreed upon for the share of oats, said amount to be paid by November 27, 1939.—Carried.

As a result of the bombing, by shell fragments, of more than 20,000 British soldiers in the world war, a chain visor was designed by then-Captain R. R. Cruise. The visor, shown here in the raised, or unused position, can be pulled down when the wearer is advancing in the face of an artillery barrage. The visor pictured was used in the last months of the world war. The inventor, who is now Sir Richard Cruise, an expert for Queen-Mother Mary, is making improvements on the device for use in the European war.

IODINE FOR LIVE STOCK

Hairlessness in young pigs, joint ill or navel ill in young foals, as well as guttrot in lambs and young calves, all may be traced to a scarcity of thyroxine in the system, says E. Van Nieu, Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, Sask. This material, under normal conditions, is secreted by the thyroid gland in the throat and contains from 90 to 95 per cent. iodine. If a small quantity of iodine is present in the drinking water or in the food, this gland may get sufficient iodine to function normally, but many areas great distances from the sea show a shortage of iodine by a prevalence of the disorders mentioned. When the thyroid gland cannot function properly for want of iodine, it expands in an effort to secrete the quantity of thyroxine required in the body, resulting in a lump in the throat. However, in the case of lambs, it has been observed at the Experimental Station at Scott, that the size or exact location of the enlargement on the gland was no indication of the seriousness of the case. Some lambs showing an enlarged gland recovered while others showing no enlargement died.

The presence of any of the mentioned disorders in young stock indicates that the mother was short of iodine during pregnancy. The following methods of feeding iodine are recommended. For the sow, dissolve one ounce of potassium iodide in one gallon of water and give one tablespoonful per sow daily in the feed during the gestation period. In case of the pregnant ewe, dissolve one ounce of potassium iodide in a cup of warm water and sprinkle over each 20lb. of salt used. Mix thoroughly and keep in a box before ewes in a convenient place where it will not be covered with feed. For the mare and cow, one-third of a teaspoonful of the potassium iodide may be given in the feed every two weeks.

Iodized salt may not contain sufficient iodine to supply the needs of the pregnant mother as analysis has shown in some cases the actual quantity present to be very small.

RESULTS OF CEREAL VARIETY TESTS

Results from the cereal tests conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, Morden, Manitoba, reveal only average yields for the past season when compared with the 5-year period 1933 to 1939 inclusive. Despite drought, hot drying winds and visitations of myriads of grasshoppers, the yields were only slightly below average, but the berry was thin and shrunken, with weight per measured bushel below normal. Unlike 1938, rust was not a serious factor in the lowering of yields.

The figures in brackets following each variety show the 5-year average yields of the various cereal crops reviewed, while the order in which the varieties are named shows the 1939 ranking in point of yield.

Among tests of common rust-resistant wheat varieties, Thatcher led the group, followed by Regent, Renown and Apex. In the susceptible group Reward was the leading variety even out-yielding all the rust-resistant varieties. Five year average yields follow: Thatcher (32.12), Regent (31.75), Renown (27.45), Reward (27.21), Apex (25.42), and Mindum Durum (31.15).

Included in the barley variety tests were sixteen varieties. Many of these went down early. Repeated high winds were responsible for much shattering. The new variety, Plush, bred at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Manitoba, and licensed this year, considerably outyielded all other sorts. The seven more commonly grown varieties merit the following preference in order of yield: Plush (50.50), Newell (46.67), O.A.C. 21 (44.71), Menusury Ottawa 60 (59.40—3-year average only), Wisconsin Red 38 (44.54), Trost (36.60), Gartons (33.23—1939 yield only).

The oat crop suffered from unfavorable growth conditions resulting in rather a light yield of grain, with low weight per measured bushel. The five leading varieties were: Gopher (81.24) Russet (79.10—3-year average), Vanguard (68.77), Anthony (49.55), Banner (46.42). Some of the newer sort bred at the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, Winnipeg, were quite outstanding this year, yielding much higher than the common varieties.

Early summer conditions pointed to a heavy fall crop, but, unfortunately the long dry spell reversed the prospects, and yields of the varieties were below average. The leading varieties were: Redwing (17.74) Blom (16.18), Crown (23.42), and Buda (19.59).

Field peas are a very minor crop in Manitoba. However, the usual test plots are conducted at the Morden Station each year. Those meriting mention were: Early Blue (38.55), Mackay (35.39), and Chancellor (27.38).

THE CORRECT WAY TO MAKE-UP

There is a right way to make-up, so perhaps you will find these hints timely now that party and dance nights are here again.

It is important to thoroughly clean the skin, so cleanse this by always washing with a bland olive oil soap. And for your make-up, do use the "six minute make-up" method, using Three Purpose cream and powder, rouge and lipstick to match.

Cleanse pores and skin thoroughly of all foreign matter by massaging Three-Purpose cream in gently. Remove all the cream with a damp, warm cloth. Then smooth on a little more cream and wipe the face gently with a damp cold cloth. This leaves on your skin a fine, thin film of cream that acts as a powder base without clogging your pores.

If you use eyeshadow, this goes on next. Use very little, and stroke it lightly over eyelid, to outward corner of eye.

Now lightly smooth rouge over your face with finger-tips, to work foundation cream and rouge in evenly. Generously pat powder all over your face, not forgetting under your chin, along jaw-line and down the neck.

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

The American Public Health Association, meeting in Pittsburgh, labels pneumonia as "Public Health Enemy No. 3," indicating that this affliction comes third in the category of life destroyers and being only exceeded in this respect by heart disease and cancer. There are signs that pneumonia may be conquered at an early date.

Heretofore, the use of serums, oxygen tents and careful nursing have been principal agencies of treatment. Last year that of daganon or sulphyridine was added with spectacular results. The mortality, in closely checked experiments, came down from 26 to 8 per cent. Last week the Mellon Institute of Pittsburgh announced the development of another new anti-pneumonia drug known by the overpopular name of "hydroxyethylacouprine." It is made from quinine and is said to be more effective than daganon, not causing the nausea, vomiting and other nasty effects of the latter.

Needless to say, all these new drugs are potentially dangerous in the hands of the inexperienced. They must be carefully used and applied in the proper dosage. They are emphatically not remedies to be sold to everyone over the drug counter.

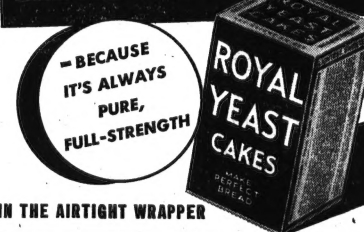

Another remedy for pneumonia appears under the head of a vaccine and Dr. Felton of the National Health Institute of Washington, D.C., says that it constitutes a preventive of "great promise." Its effects last only for about one year, but preliminary experiments show it to be quite effective in preventing pneumonia. Perhaps when the coming winter is over, we shall be able to speak with more confidence regarding these new remedies.

As we go into the winter months we invite you to stay at the Grosvenor where its broad fireplace spreads a homey, cheery atmosphere throughout the best lounge. GASOLINE HAZARD

In spite of the many repeated warnings by officials, fire insurance companies and writers in general, the habit of taking gasoline into the home for the purpose of cleaning garments, pens, etc., is pointed out by the Town of Wainwright.

There is hardly a week goes by that some family in the Dominion is not seriously injured, suffers loss or even bereaved from this cause. In the fall and winter months especially this habit is particularly dangerous. During these seasons the cold weather outside is the cause of keeping doors closed and brisk fires going in the stoves.

It should be clearly understood that gasoline in an open vessel in a warm room does not have to come in contact with the fire to cause an explosion. The warm room causes a portion of the gasoline to evaporate into gas and this gas invariably drifts over with the air currents to the stove. The tiniest bit of open flame is likely to rush back along the line of gas to the gasoline contained in the vessel. If this is ignited, fire loss and possible loss of life occurs.

Only last week in a town not so very far distant a happening similar to that described above occurred. The safest plan is never to have gasoline in an open vessel in the house, certainly not in winter when fires are going in the stoves and the house doors are closed.

Suffering from blood poisoning, young Felix Grayton, of Edgemoor, is a patient at the hospital this week.

"DEBUNKING" WINCHELL

In the Swift Current Sun last week Editor James Greenblatt has this to say of Walter Winchell:

"War news is scarce these days... there's nothing left but Walter Winchell... which one doesn't have to listen to, but many persist in, maybe because he's getting so darn offensive with his 'debunking' the propaganda talk..."

"It's a wonder his sponsors, who sell quite a lot of hand lotion in Canada, wouldn't get wise to themselves and tone him down for Canadian consumption... the man (Winchell) who became famous on divorces and other people's babies has set himself up as a one-man band to keep the United States out of the war, which is quite alright but his sarcastic commentary on our war effort is decidedly uncalled for, especially when he draws a magnificent salary for (in part) helping to sell hand-lotion in this country and we're part of the British Commonwealth engaged in a serious war..."

"...he should confine himself to something that suits him, purveying questionable American gossip and leave the British to work out their own destiny... Just a few short months ago we had all worked up to the necessity of doing something to rid the world of the 'Gangster of Europe'... well, Winchell, the job has been taken on... you confine yourself to your favorite Reno smut... you haven't earned the right to belittle the democracies, especially when some of them are fighting to preserve something you seem to prize very highly—freedom and liberty."

wit and sparkle that makes for entertainment. It owes its success to that very spirit, to its spontaneity, and to the board of experts headed by Clifton Fadiman as master of ceremonies.

Fadiman shoots questions at John Kieran, Oscar Levant and Franklin P. Adams. But along with them have been such illustrious guests as Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Deems Taylor, John Gunther, Stuart Chase and George Kaufman.

The program gives, to us everyday folks, an opportunity of spending a pleasant half hour a week with the sort of men and women who would be welcome guests at the dinner table of the big 403. Furthermore, they offer generous prizes to us if we become successful participants in their Monday night get-togethers.

Happy Gang to be CICA Feature.
December 4 seems to be the starting date for many good features, and along with Information Please, CICA listeners will also be able to hear The Happy Gang, to be broadcast Monday to Friday, at 11.00 a.m. The Happy Gang has improved from week to week, until it is now considered to have reached a spot where it can be called one of the outstanding Canadian programs. Informal in nature, with Bert Pearl doing duty as master of ceremonies, it makes for an easy, friendly half-hour of good listening.

Grenadier Guards Broadcast.
Another new CICA Thursday night feature is a half-hour broadcast by the band of His Majesty's Canadian Grenadier Guards, with songs by the Guardsmen Quartet. Along with the music, there will be a mystery tune contest with generous cash prizes.

DEE DESILETS

This pair of National League players may be on the griddle or in the hero's chair when the winter gets well under way, but for the moment they're looked upon with favor. Turk Broda, who guards the goal for Toronto Maple Leafs, had just one goal scored on him in the Leafs' first three games, turning in two shutout efforts over the Bruins and Rangers and letting the only goal in during a 1-1 tie with the latter team. Desilets has been prominent in Chicago Black Hawks' games and featured their second win of the season, a 2-1 decision over the Americans, by scoring both his team's goals.

A concert, directed by Mrs. W. S. Clark and under the auspices of Grace Methodist choir, was held on Wednesday evening. Besides numerous enjoyable musical numbers, two sketches were given, "Getting Rid of an Agent" and "Minister's Mistake".

Mr. Andy McLean left to visit with relatives in Auld Scotia.

EDGERTON

Nine members of the Chauvin Masonic Order attended the local Lodge on the night of Monday, November 20th, when we understand that some special degree work was carried out. From various remarks we have heard dropped, the Edgerton lodge has had extensive improvements made to the interior decorations recently, and the members thereof are very pleased with the results.

The two rival bridge clubs met at the home of Mrs. F. W. Davis for a challenge match on Tuesday evening, November 21st, and the serious players—the Jittersburgs—were victorious. It was impressed upon us that the final score would indicate some really brilliant bridge because the winners won by a mere 70 points.

Dud Sawyer, who had spent a few days at home with his family, returned to Wainwright on Tuesday, November 21st, to continue his duties in the Buffalo Park, where he is assisting with the wholesale slaughtering of every animal there.

Two or three cars containing Masonic Lodge members drove to Chauvin on Thursday evening last and returned the Monday visit here. At the conclusion of lodge business several "remained" and "tripped the light fantastic" at the Red Cross dance.

The weather had us badly scared on Wednesday last, with its lowering skies and howling wind, but luckily for all concerned it was just a false alarm and as we write (Sunday) it might easily be an April day instead of late November. We even saw golfers sailing forth with clubs, etc., which, to say the very least, is unusual in these parts considering that in exactly four weeks it will be Christmas Eve.

A Red Cross meeting was held on Saturday afternoon in Pavey's Hall but, unfortunately, the attendance was somewhat poor, possibly owing to the fact that the affair had been postponed. Membership cards and buttons were distributed to paid-up members, and two new officers were appointed. Mrs. S. I. Groves was elected to head the work committee and Mrs. R. E. Stratton as convener. In future, regular meetings will be held on the last Saturday in each month, and it is hoped that everyone interested will make all possible effort to attend.

That nasty old flu-bug is still floating around and the worst part of it is he likes us so well he waits until we are almost recovered, then bites, or stings—or whatever he does—the second and even a third time. A family reunion, comprising 16 children and grandchildren, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gilbert on Sunday last, in honor of Mrs. A. J. Taylor, who reached the 78th anniversary of her birthday on Monday, November 27th. The visiting families were Mr. and Mrs. Harold U. Taylor and family, of Wainwright, and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart P. Taylor and family, of Hope Valley. A bountiful repast was served by the hostess, assisted by her two daughters, and with the gifts and hearty wishes of all present for many more happy years, it was indeed a day to be long remembered by the guest of honor, as well as by all who participated in the happy event.

Norman McDonald, of the Red and White staff, took advantage of the wonderful weather on Sunday and drove home to Kitscoty, where he spent the day with his family.

Dan Cupid must be running out of arrows, or something, because two whole weeks have gone by with nary a shower or even a hint of a new engagement. Just locally we mean, of course.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jackson Marvin and Jacee motored to Edmonton on Friday.

THE CAREFUL DRIVER
A peculiar thing about speed is the fact that we never quite realize how fast we are going. If we drive along at a certain speed for quite a while, its an easy matter to unconsciously increase our speed a few miles an hour. If we continue thus to accelerate, we soon find ourselves traveling at a dangerous rate, and this is often brought forcibly to our attention as we try to round a curve. Then half way around the curve we find centrifugal force trying to turn us over, to push us onto the wrong lane, or off the road. The centrifugal force exercised by momentum against a car when endeavoring to round a curve at high speed is much greater than it is with a passenger car due to the higher center of gravity and larger area or size of our vehicle. The laws of momentum react strongly against us in going around a curve because momentum wants to keep us going and going straight ahead. But when we try to go around a curve, momentum operating against us becomes what is then known as centrifugal force, endeavoring to turn us over or shove us off the road. That is the reason the highways as well as railroads are banked at the curves.

Colors that do not frequently leave the living and bedrooms, are now coming into the kitchen, according to Miss Virginia Hamill of New York, interior decorator and industrial stylist. Coral pink, salmon pink, grey, black, white and green or laquer red, yellow with brown, yellow with royal blue and coppery tones are some of the colors and combinations which are becoming fashionable for kitchen decoration. These gay colors are being used for walls, floors, cabinet linings, curtains and accessories. Several new wall covering materials featuring unusual shades for kitchen use have recently become available.

Gray and white hair is very sensitive and easily discolored by heat, whether of steam or an iron, particularly when it is permanently waved. An acid condition of the system also reacts on the hair in the form of yellow streaks. Ordinary shampoo cannot remove these discolorations but the pure white brilliance is easily restored with a concentrated bluing rinse recently developed.

CHAPTER XIII

The apartment buzzer sounded before Cary had finished her hair. She looked quickly at Ivy, who was propped up in bed with a book.

"That sure can't be Paul already. Why, I'm not half dressed—"

"All right," Ivy groaned. "I see you aren't." She put a marker in the book, swung off the bed.

"I'll answer it. It's a good thing I don't go in for a lot of cold cream and chin straps and curlers and that kind of business at night, like Lucrétia. I believe in being ready for every emergency. I've been waiting twenty years to be carried down a tall ladder by a handsome fireman." She slipped into a house coat and went out of the room as Cary pushed an unruly curl into place and put a hair-pin in it.

Cary went to the closet and took the hangers along the rod. She slid the black chiffon and fingered its full skirt for a moment, then put it back. The "pulley-strap" dress was out too. It was left over from the winter before and, besides, Paul had never particularly liked it. "You look too sophisticated in it," he told her. "I like my women natural."

That also let out the sheath frock with its cyclamen-colored jacket, which added about two inches to her height. She could not be too tall, looking with Paul. He resented her height.

A fleeting thought of Anthony's six feet cut through her mind. She shut it off and hastily took the simply-fashioned sheer, white dress with its demure little collar from the hanger and slipped it over her shoulders. She was snapping the last hook when Ivy opened the door and stood there for a moment before coming in.

"That dress and your hair done to what ought to bring the desired result, my dear."

"What did you do with Paul?" Cary asked.

"I didn't do anything with Paul. This is what I met at the door."

She produced a cellophane box and returned to her bed with bored air.

"It must be grand to be in love," she said.

Cary opened the box. There were orchids, of course. Paul never sent her anything but orchids. Sometimes she wished he would surprise her with roses or gardenias or something exciting like Transvaal daisies. She lifted the gorgeous blossoms out of the box and pinned them against the shoulder of the white dress. The effect was not good. Not enough contrast in color, but Paul would be disappointed if she did not wear them.

She glanced up to surprise Ivy's unguarded look. "No one, darling, could see you in that dress without wanting to make love to you," Ivy said.

And Ivy was right. Cary could see it in Paul's eyes as he leaned across the table, an hour later, and said, "We really ought to do something about that music." She knew he wanted to touch her.

She smiled sweetly. "Shall we, then?"

He did not wait for a second invitation. He got up and came around to her and she lifted her rounded, white arms to him. "You're sweet," he said.

Then they danced a long time without talking very much.

They returned to the table. The music went on without them and Cary breathed a little easier out of the circle of Paul's arm. She looked about her. There was plenty of swank here—chromium, mirrors, gilt and glitter, the place was crowded. Walters scurried from table to table. Perfume hung in the air—shaken out of the beautiful gowns of lovely women. Blue-white streamers of cigarette smoke wafted lazily over the heads of the dancers whose feet made whispering sounds on the floor.

For one breath-taking moment Cary thought she glimpsed Anthony, but immediately she knew that this was not the place for him. He could not afford such extravagance. Possibly, at this moment, while she was trying to be witty over jugged hare, he was sitting on a high stool in a hole-in-the-wall eating a sandwich and drinking black coffee.

"Dad's thinking of sending me to Mexico next month," Paul said.

"What a grand thought," Cary said. "It must be lovely down there this time of year—any time of year, for that matter."

"How would you like to go along?" Her fork made a resounding clatter on her plate. Was this his way of asking her to marry him? If so, she wasn't quite ready to have Paul say such things to her.

Paul drew his fine brow in a puzzled line and then laughed. "I didn't get you at first. If you mean those horses we can get rid of them easily." He looked at her through a thin veil of smoke. "I've been looking at a house in Coronado. Mother wanted me to see it. She thinks it's just the thing."

She tried desperately to shut her mind to any dreams which she might have dreamed, and think of herself as Paul's wife. She would be happy with him, after a fashion, she was sure. They would go places together, see interesting things. There would be a big house in Coronado with ocean frontage and servants. Later there would be children; amused her, for she knew Lucrétia would be sulen and unforgiving in the role of grand mother. But Paul would be generous with Lucrétia. Such men as Jim Constance would drop out of her life. Cary hoped. The horses would be sold. Mrs. Norris would see to that.

Anthony Garth would revert to a 14-year-old boy who climbed trees with breath-taking swiftness and explored dark caves. Anthony, the man, would never figure in Cary's life again, after she married Paul.

She looked out across the floor at the dancers and she saw must have caused her to pale, slightly, for Paul, his eyes intent upon her, put his hand quickly over hers and said, "Darling, let's get out of here and drive a bit. It's terribly close and stuffy."

She said, "Yes, let's do."

She saw through his excuse to get her away to himself as a chance to make love to her, but the thought no longer frightened her. Across the floor she had glimpsed Jim Constance. He was dancing with a slender, brown-haired girl. His head was bent close to hers and his broad face was slightly flushed.

The girl might have been Cary herself, and she didn't like the picture it made. She realized for the first time that she owed Jim Constance too much money.

CHAPTER XIV
Far out Sunset Boulevard, Paul eased the car into the curb and switched off the motor. He put his arm about Cary and gently drew her closer to him.

She did not resist and let her head rest lightly against his shoulder. For a moment they sat there without saying anything. The lights of Los Angeles sprawled out below them, mostly yellow, with a sprinkling of reds and greens. She wondered vaguely what Paul would think if he knew about the money she owed Jim—the money that would somehow have to be repaid before she could marry anyone.

She wondered, too, what he would think of Anthony Garth—if he would be jealous of him.

Paul slid his long fingers along her cheek and tipped her face up to his. He kissed her and again she had that odd feeling of not being quite content when Paul kissed her.

"Cary, darling, we've had a lot of fun together, haven't we?"

"Yes, Paul." There was something about his voice that puzzled her, as if he were treading uncertain ground.

"We can go on having fun together can't we?"

Again she answered, "Yes, Paul," and added as if to quiet any doubt in her own mind, "I'm sure we can."

For a few moments he held her close to him. Then he let her go, and said, "You do love me, don't you, Cary?"

"I think I have always loved you a little, Paul." She believed in that moment, no close to him, that she had.

"My mother thinks we shouldn't wait any longer about getting married," Cary realized with a start that he was talking about marriage—their marriage—taking it for granted. But before she could speak, his arms drew her to him and he was saying, "I'll be awfully good to you, Cary."

He kissed her gently.

Her marriage to Paul—she closed her eyes in blind submission to the thought.

When Cary let herself into the apartment again she was aware in a start that there was still a light in her mother's room. The lateness of the hour made that light ominous. Fear clutched at Cary's heart. Perhaps Lucrétia was sick this time. After all, Anthony Garth must have been a terribly bitter pill for her to swallow. But when Cary tiptoed to the door, Lucrétia called, "That you, darling? Come on in, will you?"

There was no reproach in the voice. Cary went in to find her mother propped up in bed with a book. To her surprise, Lucrétia held up her hand to her and said, "I couldn't let the night pass with so much between us, so I waited up or you. It just about kills me, darling, when we quarrel. You are all I have, you know."

Cary put her arms about her mother and hid her eyes against Lucrétia's shoulders, smooth and fragrant beneath silk pajamas.

"Same here," she said, but she was quick to sense that Lucrétia was waiting—almost impatiently—to be told about Paul. So she said, "Paul and I are going to be married."

"Darling—" Lucrétia was wide-eyed but she could not hide the triumph in her voice. "Tell me about it. Of course Paul is anxious to get married right away? Men are like that."

"Paul didn't say. We have no definite plans. After all, we've known each other a long time and only got on this far. It may be another six months before we take the next step."

Lucrétia sank back in her pillows, her eyes narrowed and her lips set in a thin line. Cary thought for the first time that those lips were very ordinary without makeup.

"I can't understand you, Cary," she said impatiently. "Why can't you make up your mind?"

A week later Cary rented a car and drove to Hollywood Bowl to see Anthony. She was careful that neither Ivy nor Lucrétia suspected her destination. Her excuse was for going, she told herself, was to ask his final advice about entering Red Roamer in the allowance on the following Saturday. The racing secretary was putting an extra five pounds on him.

She found Anthony talking Chief Cal, but when he saw her he handed the big horse over to a boy and came to meet her.

"I've been expecting you to call—" she began, then stopped at the thing her words told.

"What's the use of going on with anything," Anthony said frankly. "You saw for yourself how your mother feels toward me."

"But, Tony, I want to go on being friends. We could be friends, couldn't we?" she asked lamely.

"Do you think for one moment it could be that way with us?"

"It would have to be," he said.

"Why?" he asked.

"Because I'm going to be married." Her voice was not quite steady.

His dark eyes burned with incredulity. His lips twitched painfully and he gave a hard little cough. Cary thought she could be forgiven for thinking that some day some woman would know the feel of those hard lips against hers.

"Why did you come here to tell me this?" he said roughly.

"I wanted to be the first to tell you. I didn't want you to hear it from someone else or read it in the papers."

"Thanks for thinking about my feelings, but I don't believe that is the reason. You aren't happy about it, either. I can see that in your eyes, although I must say you are doing a noble job of trying to hide it. I suppose the lucky man is rich, handsome, socially prominent. You'll have a house in New York, another in Newport, an apartment in Paris and a villa in Nice. Your mother will like that."

"Stop it!" Cary said. Hot tears pressed against her lids. She looked down at her hands. They were shaking.

He took them into his and held them steadily and said, more gently than she had ever heard him speak before, "I'm sorry." Then, "Look at me, Cary. Don't look away." She raised her eyes to his dark ones and was puzzled by what she saw in them.

"That's better," he said. "Now tell me. Why did you come here to tell me that you are going to be married?"

"Because I had to have some sort of defense against you, I guess," she answered frankly.

He laughed shortly and released her hands.

"That's a pretty poor defense." (To Be Continued)

The World of Wheat
H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

Some are saying that the speculative buying of wheat is harmful, and that if speculation could be done away with that our farmers would be better off.

The trouble is that no one has ever yet devised a plan by which Canadian wheat can possibly be sold without speculation.

Farmers haul the bulk of their wheat to country elevators within a few weeks after harvest, and usually wish to be paid for it at once. Millers overseas take the bulk of this wheat long afterwards, and do not pay for it until they need it. If our farmers, therefore, are to be paid at harvest-time, then obviously someone has to buy their wheat as soon as it is hauled, and then hold it until the millers require it. That someone is a speculator, whether he is an exporter or an importer, a grain merchant.

HELEN KELLER

The Deaf, Dumb and Blind Girl Who Was Likened to Napoleon

Mark Twain once said: "The two most interesting characters of the nineteenth century are Napoleon and Helen Keller." When Mark Twain said that, Helen Keller was only fifteen years old. Today she still remains one of the most interesting characters of the twentieth century.

Helen Keller is totally blind, yet she has read far more books than most people who can see. She has probably read a hundred times as many books as the average person, and she has written seven books herself. She made a motion picture of her own life and acted in it. She is totally deaf, yet she enjoys music far more than many people who can hear.

For nine years of her life, she was deprived of the power of speech; yet she has delivered lectures in every state in the Union; for four years, she appeared as a headliner in vaudeville; and she has traveled all over Europe.

Helen Keller has been perfectly normal. For the first year and a half of her life, she could see and hear like other children and had even begun to talk. Then suddenly she was overwhelmed by catastrophe. She was struck down by an illness which left her deaf, dumb and blind at the age of nineteen months and blighted her whole existence.

She began to grow up like a wild animal in the jungle. She smashed and destroyed every object that displeased her. She crawled her food into her mouth with both hands; and when anyone tried to correct her, she flung herself upon the floor and kicked and thrashed and tried to scream.

In utter despair, her parents sent her to the Perkins Institute for the Blind in Boston, pleading for a teacher. Then, like an angel, Anne Mansfield Sullivan came into her tragic life. Miss Sullivan was only twenty years old when she left the Perkins Institute in Boston and undertook what seemed an impossible task—the task of educating a deaf, dumb and blind child. Her own life had been filled with tragedy and heart-breaking poverty.

At the age of ten, Anne Sullivan had been sent with her little brother to live at the poorhouse in Tewksbury, Massachusetts. The poorhouse was so overcrowded that the two children slept in what was known as the "dead room"—the room where dead bodies were laid out to await burial. The little brother was sickly and after six months, he died. And Anne herself, when she was only fourteen years old, had become so nearly blind that she was sent to the Perkins Institute to learn to read with her fingers. But she did not go blind. Not then. Her sight improved. It was only a half-century later, and shortly before her death, that the darkness finally closed in upon her.

I cannot possibly make clear in a few words the miracle Anne Sullivan wrought with Helen Keller; nor how in one short month, she succeeded in communicating with a child who was in utter darkness and a withering silence. That story has been told unforgettably in Helen Keller's own book, The Story of My Life. No one who has read that book can possibly help remembering the happiness of the little deaf, dumb and blind child on the day she first realized there was such a thing as human speech. "It would have been difficult," she says, "to find a happier child than I was as I lay in my crib at the close of that eventful day and lived over the joys it had brought me, and for the first time, longed for a new day to come."

When Helen Keller was twenty years old, her education had advanced so far that she entered Radcliffe College, and her teacher went with her. By that time, she could not only read and write as well as any other student at college, but she had even reached the power of speech. The first sentence she ever learned to say was "I am not dumb now." She said it over and over again, thrilled, elated at the miracle. "I am not dumb now."

Today she speaks like a person who has a slight foreign accent. She writes her books and magazine articles on a typewriter that types in Braille, or raised dots. And if she wants to make corrections in the margin, she picks little capsules in the paper with a hairpin.

She lives in Forest Hills, a part of New York City. I live only a few blocks from her home and when I go out walking with my Boston bull dog, I sometimes see her strolling in her garden with her shepherd dog for a companion.

I have noticed that as she walks, she often talks to herself. But she doesn't move her lips as you and I do—she moves her fingers, and talks to herself in sign language. Her secretary told me that Miss Keller's sense of direction is no better than yours or mine. She often loses her way in her own home, and if the furniture is moved, she is at a complete loss. Many people expect her to have a sort of uncanny sixth sense because she is blind, yet scientific tests have shown that her sense of touch and taste and smell are just about like yours.

However, her sense of touch is so acute that she can understand what her friends are saying by placing her fingers lightly over their lips, and she enjoys music by putting her hands on the wood of a piano, or a violin; she even listens to the radio by feeling the vibrations of the cabinet. She enjoys singing by putting her fingers lightly on the throat of the singer, but she herself cannot sing or carry a tune.

I Helen Keller were to shake hands with you today and then meet you and shake hands again five years later, she would remember you by your handshakes—whether you were angry or happy, disappointed or gay. She knows a host and swins and loves to gallop through the woods on horseback. She plays checkers and chess with a set made especially for her. She even plays solitaire with a deck of cards that has raised figures and on rainy days, she often spends the time knitting or crocheting.

Most of us think that about the worst affliction in the world is to become blind. Yet Helen Keller says she doesn't mind being blind nearly so much as being deaf. In the utter darkness and silence which separates her from the world, the thing which she misses most is the friendly sound of the human voice.

a business man or anyone else; and if a Government Board purchases and holds the wheat, then it is the tax payers who become the speculators, because the tax payers then assume the risk of money loss from a possible drop in price.

If anyone can devise a plan by which Western wheat can be sold without speculation, then his name will go down in history written in letters of gold.

Following factors have tended to raise prices: Excessive rainfall; destruction of Argentine crops—Heavy sales of Canadian barley to U.S.A.—Unfavorable seeding conditions reported in some districts of India—House of Commons announces that higher prices will be paid to British farmers for wheat and oats—Food is becoming scarce in Spain.

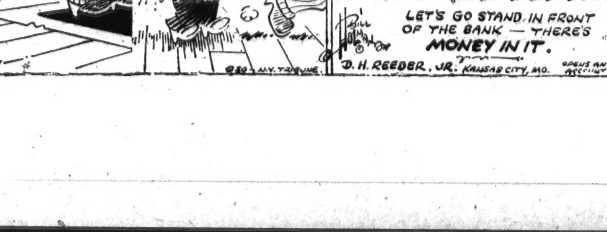

Following factors have tended to lower prices: A record "carry-over" of 75 million bushels of wheat estimated for Argentina this year—Large acreage expected in Argentina this season—Favorable seeding progress reported in Bulgaria—Australian wheat crop estimated at 181 million bushels—U.S. corn crop estimated at 2,592,000,000 bushels.

The Careful Driver

Did you ever figure out how far you have to drive to pass another car that is travelling 30 miles an hour? Assuming your speed is 40 miles an hour, and allowing safe distances for turning out and coming back into your own lane, you must travel 600 feet while the vehicle you are passing goes 450 feet. This is equivalent to passing a stationary line of 18 trucks each 25 feet long, standing bumper to bumper. If the vehicle you want to pass is travelling 40 miles an hour and you pass it at 50 miles an hour these distances are even greater. At those speeds you must travel 750 feet while the other car goes 900 feet. In other words, it is equal to passing a stationary line of 38 average automobiles or 15 tractor trailer units, each 40 feet long.

These facts point clearly to the necessity of knowing that there are no oncoming cars for a long distance ahead. They should also convince us of the extreme folly of trying to pass an automobile or another truck on a hill or on a curve where vision is obstructed.

WAR RELIEF

National Red Cross War Drive
$3,000,000

How is this money to be spent? The charter of the Canadian Red Cross Society sets out the objects of this great cause as follows:

"In times of peace or war to carry on and assist in work for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world."

Last year the sum of $1,000,000.00 was collected to finance the peace-time work of the Society. Today, because of the greater needs of war, three times that amount must be raised. Peace-time activities cannot be neglected and the programme of war relief must be initiated at once.

Consideration of the many aspects of Red Cross work in 1914-1918 gives some indication of the programme that will have to be undertaken in the present war.

Hospitals and Nurses

Hospitals must be built and equipped in England and France to care for the Canadian sick and wounded. During the last war the Canadian Red Cross built and equipped (wholly or in part) hospitals at Taplow, Bushey Park, Ramsgate, Boxhill and Buxton in England, built and equipped one of the largest military hospitals in France; and established a depot in Boulogne for Canadian hospitals.

Ambulances

From 1914 to 1918 the Canadian Red Cross provided scores of ambulances to convey the sick and wounded in France and England.

Motor Lorries

The Canadian Red Cross in France maintained a service of motor lorries to ensure the conveyance of Red Cross supplies with the greatest possible dispatch wherever needed.

Surgical Supplies and Medicines

X-ray equipment, surgical apparatus, supplies and dressings must be purchased almost immediately. During the last war, 147,270 cases of supplies were sent to hospital units in England. £2,500 was contributed to equip a ward in the St. John Ambulance Brigade Hospital at Etaples in France.

Food and Comforts

Again the Red Cross wishes to be able to send socks, cigarettes and other comforts to the front. During the last war, 341,395 cases of supplies were sent overseas. The Society sent sixty pounds of food per month to every Canadian prisoner of war, in addition to tobacco, medical supplies, clothing and books.

Information Bureau

The Information Bureau set up at the London office rendered personal services to thousands of soldiers. Hospital visitors supplied Canadian patients with extra comforts and entertainments and reported their progress to relatives at home, and their needs to the Society. The Enquiry Department constantly searched for news of "missing" men to relieve the suspense of distant relatives.

A corps of voluntary workers will make a canvass of as many donors as possible during this drive. If one of these workers fails to get in touch with you, send in your contribution to your local Red Cross Branch.

NAMED TO HIGH AGRICULTURAL POST

PROP. K. W. NEATBY, head of the Field Crops Department of the University of Alberta, who has been selected by the Line Elevator Companies as Director of the newly formed Agricultural Division of the North-West Grain Dealers' Association.

Line Country Elevator Companies announced today that they have formed an agricultural division of the North-West Grain Dealers' Association. The new department will be under the direction of Professor K. W. Neatby.

"For some considerable time past the line elevators have been giving serious consideration to the most effective and constructive manner in which they could assist in agricultural problems. The proper personnel to undertake such a work was their first consideration and they are now pleased to announce the appointment of Professor Neatby who is an outstanding authority on field crops and agriculture generally," said C. W. P. Heffelfinger, president of the Line Elevators' Association. "He will be given a free hand in dedicating the work of this new department to the welfare and advancement of farming in Western Canada. Particular thought will be given to seed grain and crop improvement work."

Professor Neatby spent his early years in Saskatchewan and in 1924 obtained his B.S.A. degree at the University of Saskatchewan. He performed graduate work in cereal breeding at the University of Saskatchewan in 1925-26 and at the University of Minnesota in 1927-28 in genetics and plant pathology, where he obtained his M.S.A. degree. From 1928 until 1935 he was attached to the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory as cereal specialist and in 1935 was appointed head of the field crops department of the University of Alberta.

T.C.A. PLANES AID SCIENCE

When a huge Lockheed monoplane of Trans-Canada Air Lines took off from Sea Island airport, Vancouver, recently it carried a tiny cardboard box along with the regular cargo of mail. On a regular flight across the continent, the T.C.A. machine was inaugurating special services in the interests of science. In the small box was a photographic plate coated with special emulsion to record cosmic ray activity at high altitudes, part of a research program of the University of British Columbia.

During the summer of 1939 the new airline performed two other places of public service when pilots reported the migration of grasshoppers across the prairies and watched for the outbreak of forest fires along the coast-to-coast route.

Hints for the Household

Conducted By Betty Barclay

These are cake days. Cooler weather makes baking a pleasure rather than a task, so homemade cakes are appearing in far greater quantity than during the summer.

A particularly delicious orange sponge cake with a flavoured filling becomes a star recipe for the month.

Orange Sponge Cake

5 egg yolks
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup water
2 cups cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
5 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Beat egg yolks, sugar and orange juice for 10 minutes with a rotary hand or machine beater. Add water and beat 2 minutes. Add flour, sifted with baking powder and salt. Beat about 1 minute, or only until the dry ingredients have been quickly and thoroughly blended into the mixture. Fold in the grated peel, and then the egg whites which have been stiffly beaten but not dry. Bake in a 9-inch tube pan, in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 70 minutes.

For the filling take:

4 egg yolks
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon gelatin
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1/2 cup sugar

Mix egg yolks, 1/2 cup sugar and orange juice and cook in double boiler. When thick, add the gelatin and orange peel. Cool. Beat egg whites and add 1/2 cup sugar. Fold egg mixture into orange custard. Spread on cake and sprinkle with coconut. Chill in refrigerator.

Holiday Nuggets

2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
2 eggs, well beaten
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 1/2 cups currants
1 1/2 cups walnut meats, coarsely cut

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and cinnamon, and sift together three times. Cut in butter; add eggs, sugar and lemon rind, and mix thoroughly. Add currants and nuts, mixing well. Drop from teaspoon onto greased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 4 dozen nuggets.

Hawaiian Fruit Bread

1 cup chopped dates
1 cup canned unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice
2 tablespoons butter or other shortening

1/2 cup honey

His Master's Voice . . . ?

by A. B. CHAPIN

FOR BETTER HEALTH BY Dr. J. ROSSLYN EARP

ESSENTIALS OF HEALTH

A writer in the London Times states, "It is generally agreed nowadays that bodily health depends on two essential elements—nutrition and exercise." This ignorant opinion he describes as a "principle" and says that it was early recognized by the British Broadcasting Corporation. So much the worse for the British radio public.

A sufficient dose of tubercle bacilli will result in tuberculosis however well nourished you may be. Violent exercise and over-fatigue are powerful allies of the disease. Neither nutrition nor exercise can save us from syphilis or cancer or even a cold in the head. Neither careful formulas nor much kicking of his legs will keep your baby from getting dysentery, although the dysentery will certainly play havoc with his nutrition.

What, then, are the essentials of good health? First I should put good breeding. No nation that neglects the problems of inheritance will ever attain physical or intellectual perfection. Secondly I should place control of our environment, and this means proper disposal of sewage, protection of water supplies, pasteurization of milk, adequate housing, elimination of disease carriers in the animal world such as rats, flies, and mosquitoes. All of these are functions of government and for this reason it is dangerous to mislead a democracy into believing it can achieve health by physical jerks and the drinking of milk. We shall admit, of course, that good food and recreation have their place. And so also have fresh air, and sleep, and equanimity.

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

WILKINS—Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkins at the Wainwright Municipal Hospital on Tuesday, November 21st, a daughter.

A large crowd from town and the surrounding district visited the Abattoir in the park to watch the buffalo kill on Saturday.

Mrs. W. E. Wainwright, who has been travelling throughout the province in connection with her office of Worthy Grand Matron of the Eastern Star, returned to her home last week.

A surplus of grain and a scarcity of hogs has created a great demand all over the province for the hexagonal, insulated, ventilated and automatic heated hog brooder sold by the Atlas Lumber Co. It enables you not only to save your young pigs, but to have them ready for the market when hogs are highest in price. Call and look at the demonstrator at the yard. Joe Welch, agent.

Mr. F. G. Conway of Wainwright Motors, enjoyed a visit from his father, of Edmonton, last week.

After several days of renewing acquaintances in town, Mrs. Frank Hackett returned to her home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson, of Greenhills, are planning to leave shortly for California, where they will spend the winter months.

Drop in at The Star office and look through the beautiful samples of Christmas and Greeting Cards. In this way you get an early and exclusive choice.

Following their honeymoon, which was spent in Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Donaldson have now taken up residence in the Frank Horn house on Seventh Avenue.

Messrs. Ed Moore, Bob McLean and Bill Smithson are employed as engineers at the Buffalo Park during the buffalo kill.

Mrs. W. R. Jory and daughters, of Vermilion, were in town at the week end visiting Mrs. Jory's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mitchell.

Don't neglect your fire insurance. Check over your policies and see that you are fully covered. The dangerous time for fires is here.—Joe Welch.

A number of the young folk of the town enjoyed a skating party at Clear Lake on Friday evening, where it is reported the ice is in perfect condition for this sport.

Miss Madge Oddy left last week for her home in Calgary, where she will take several weeks' rest due to indifferent health.

Those in charge reported that the afternoon tea and sale of fancy goods put on by St. Thomas' W.A. on Saturday last was a decided success.

As winter arrives, your children's needs again require attention. They need the winter enjoyment of skating which promotes health. They will therefore need their skates sharpened or repaired and this is best done at the O.K. Shoe Repair, where a good job is guaranteed.

Young Norman Abernethy is a patient at the hospital this week, suffering from a broken hand.

Mr. Price Treter, of Gilt Edge, has just returned from Ontario, where he has been visiting a brother who was seriously ill.

In order that their premises might be more comfortable when the cold weather does come, Messrs. Heffernan and Son are having the windows of their pool room fitted with storm sash.

Brick chimneys above the roof should be plastered with lime and cement mixed, and lined with flue lining. The cause of most fires is that mortar has fallen out between the bricks, a heavy wind blows the sparks into the dry paper and shingles on the roof and the upper part of the house burns before the fire is noticed. Joe Welch, insurance agent.

Mr. Dave Credille, who has been drilling in the eastern part of the province, was in town last week on business.

A nice display of bazaar articles is on display in Forryan's grocery store window, these belonging to the United Church W.A. for their annual tea and sale of work next Saturday afternoon.

COMING EVENTS

The United Church W.A. will hold their annual bazaar, tea and sale of home cooking in the L.O.F. hall on Saturday, December 2nd, commencing at 3 o'clock. You are cordially invited to attend.

J. T. Alexander, prop.

The Christmas spirit is becoming evident in our stores and the timely decorations note the near approach of the festive season.

Mr. L. Baxter is making a great improvement to the interior of the house which he recently purchased on Third Avenue.

Very few store their cars for the winter as they did before the highways were kept open. The winter is the most dangerous time for car accidents. Slippery roads, frosted windshields and stiff mechanisms all add to the danger of car driving and makes car insurance most necessary now. Joe Welch, car insurance.

Coast Wedding Of Interest Here

Standards of pink and white chrysanthemums and matching streamers fastened with silver wedding bells decorated the home of the bride's parents at 3:30 p.m. on November 10th, when Rev. A. M. Trendell, of Vancouver, united in marriage Florence Katharine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Montgomery, Laburnum Avenue, Ladner, B.C., and formerly of Wainwright, and Mr. Elvin Laurence McGurk, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. McGurk, Vancouver.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a frock of regina blue crepe in bustle effect with velvet trimming, and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and pink roses.

Miss Eileen Montgomery, who attended her sister as bridesmaid, wore henna-rust and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Mr. Cecile Hoff, of Vancouver, was groomsmen.

At the reception, guests were received by Mrs. Montgomery wearing burnt-sugar crepe, assisted by Mrs. McGurk, who chose crushed grape sheer.

HEATH

A number of friends gathered at the Potvin home on Monday evening for a farewell party in honor of Miss Alma Potvin, who left with her father on Thursday for a trip to Quebec to visit relatives, and to Sudbury, Ontario, where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Rodney.

There has been an excellent week of skating on Clear Lake, where the ice is the best we have had for several years. Several parties from Heath, Edgerton and Wainwright have been down to enjoy the moonlight nights and the clear ice. One of the skating events of the week was the first gathering of the season for the Young People's Club of Heath, who turned out for a good time on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Davis motored to Artland to participate in services at the Brady school.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Watson spent Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. Bartlett at Arm Lake.

SYDENHAM

The whist drive, pie social and dance sponsored by the Sydenham Social Club and held in the school on Friday, November 17th, proved a success. But we hope for as large a crowd at the next one.

Mr. O. Crottsau left the district on Tuesday, November 21st, to help with the buffalo kill.

Mrs. Williams was a patient in the Wainwright hospital for a few days but is now home again.

Mr. P. Briggs had his home redecorated in the past week by Mr. R. Seabrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Woodward had an enjoyable motor trip to Whitecourt. They returned Sunday after a visit with the latter's parents.

Mrs. F. Church spent Friday last with her sister, Mrs. B. Hodgkins, who resides in Wainwright.

Mr. Blouin has recently purchased a new car.

A successful beef ring meeting was held last week.
